

The Workload Policy - The Deadline has been extended!

UTFA and the administration have agreed to extend the deadline for submission of workload documents on a case by case basis to March 30, 2012. If your workload committee believes that your workload document would benefit from further discussion, you may request an extension from your Dean.

If you have already submitted your workload document but believe that further discussion would produce a superior document, you may also take the opportunity of the extension to discuss workload further and amend your document accordingly. If you have questions or concerns about the workload policy, please contact workload@utfa.org.

UTFA's documents on the workload policy and its implementation along with the original workload policy document can be found here.
