Emergency Teach-In on the MAP DWG Final Report: Setting the Record Straight - Save the Date

The Muslim, Arab, and Palestinian Discrimination Working Group invites you to an Emergency Teach-In on the MAP DWG Final Report.

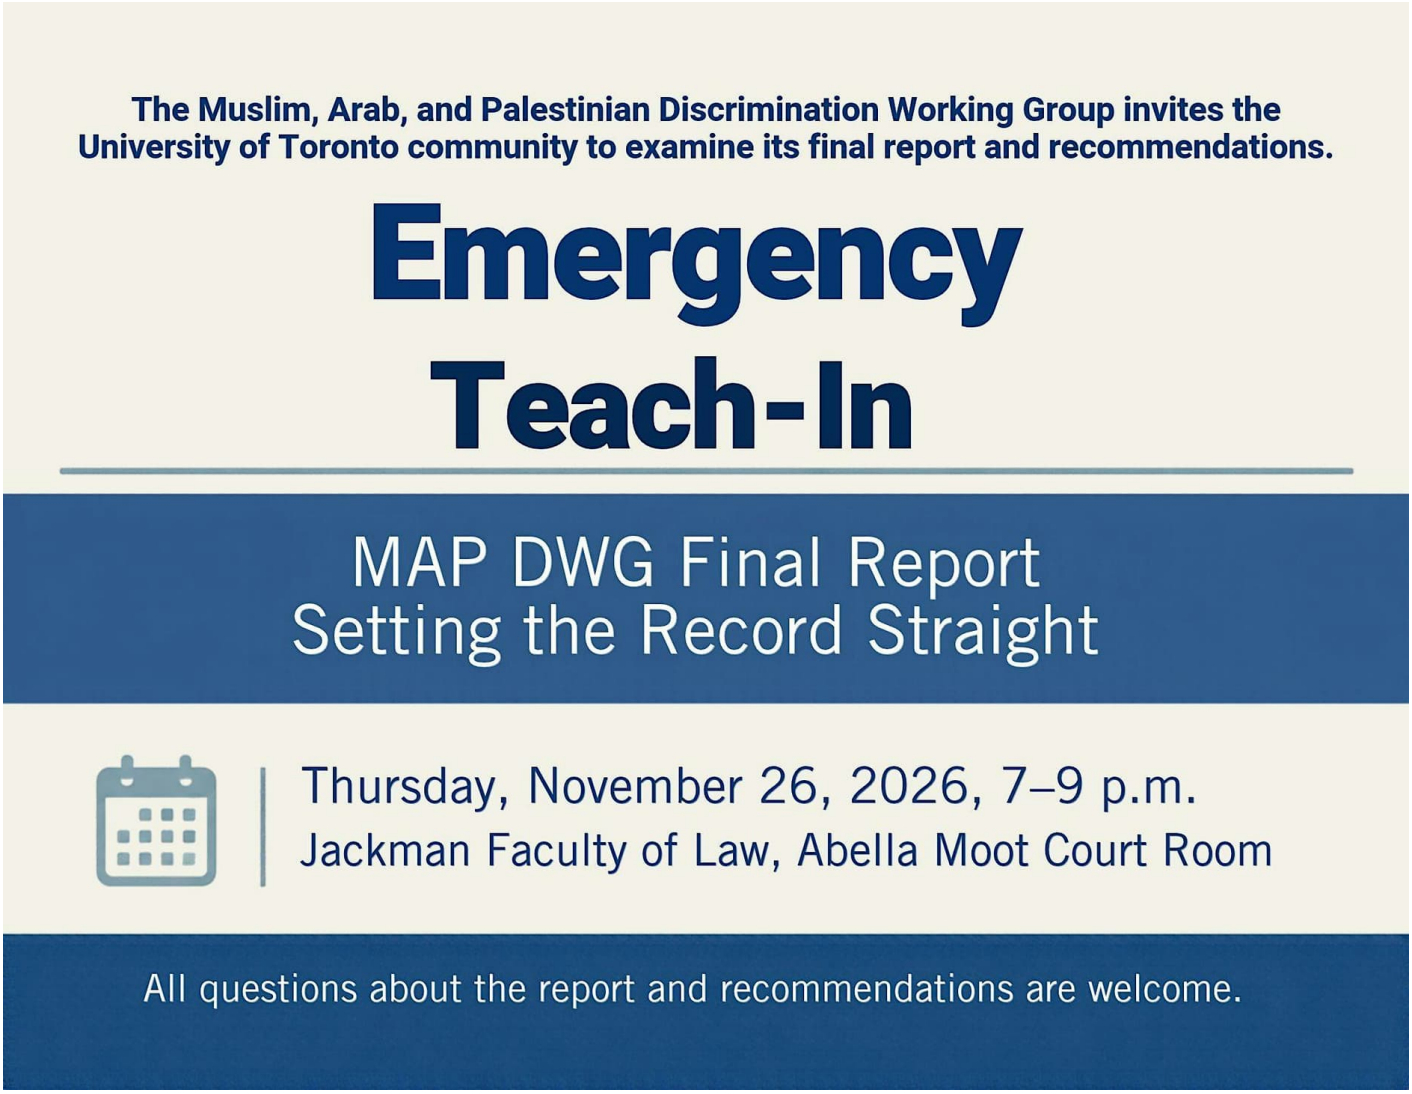

After two years, 85 consultations, and a university wide survey, MAP DWG's final report found a culture of over policing and under protecting speech, advocacy, and research by or on Muslims, Arabs, and Palestinians at the University of Toronto. MAP DWG is pleased that the final report of the working group is now publicly available. LINK

Despite undertaking a line-by-line review of the report with the administration over a five month period, the University has chosen to reject the report.

In the spirit of the University's Statement of Institutional Purpose, we invite you to an emergency teach-in to take you through the report, section by section, and address what we recommend (and do not recommend). Whether or not the University accepts this report and entrusts it to Governing Council, we wrote it with University members in mind. This teach-in is designed to help you understand how to use this report to press for better, more effective working, learning, and research conditions at the University, whether as staff, student, faculty member, librarian, student organization, and so on.

All questions about the report and recommendations are welcome.
